Financial Disclosure Statements

As Prepared by the Ethics Review Panel
of the Board of Education of Baltimore County
Financial Disclosure Statements

In the following training, you will:

• Receive an overview of the State Ethics Law and the law’s financial disclosure requirements.
• Learn about how Financial Disclosure Statements are handled by the Ethics Review Panel.
• Learn about what is included in the Financial Disclosure Statement.
What does the State Public Ethics Law require?

The Maryland Public Ethics Law (Title 5 of the General Provisions Article) recognizes that the public has the right to “be assured that the impartiality and independent judgement” of public officials is maintained. The law was enacted to guard against improper influence of government officials.

The Maryland Public Ethics Law requires certain government officials and employees to disclose their financial affairs and sets minimum ethical standards for the conduct of State and local business.
In 2021, the Maryland General Assembly amended the public ethics law. These amendments:

• Require filers to disclose the names that businesses do business under;
• Prohibit filers from accepting certain gifts;
• Require filers to disclose relationships with the UMMS, state or local governments; and
• Require filers to disclose “attributable” interests in business entities.
Financial Disclosure Statements

What does the State Public Ethics Law Require?

- Under the Maryland Public Ethics Law, a school board must require disclosure of financial affairs from local board of education members and candidates for election to the board to meet the minimum standards established under state law.

- A local school board may also require financial disclosure statements for officials and employees of that school system.

Md. General Provisions Article, §5-817

The Panel strongly recommends that you review carefully the Financial Disclosure Statement Instructions, a separate document from the Financial Disclosure Statement. The information in this slide deck is no substitute for the instructions as this slide deck is only intended to provide an overview about the Financial Disclosure Statements.

The instructions explain in detail the filing requirements for each of the schedules.
